

15 AI Prompts for UK Sole Traders

Copy-and-paste prompts for ChatGPT, Claude, Gemini and other AI assistants that save time on everyday admin, marketing and getting paid. Replace anything in [square brackets].

Use AI safely

- Don't paste customers' personal details, bank details or passwords into AI tools. Use first names or "the customer".
- Check every figure and any legal or tax statement against gov.uk before relying on it.
- Never use AI to write fake reviews or testimonials. It's illegal in the UK (Digital Markets, Competition and Consumers Act 2024).
- Read the output before sending. You're responsible for what goes out under your name.

Prompts written with AI assistance and tested by a person. September 2026.

Getting paid

Polite payment chaser

Write a friendly but firm email to [customer] about invoice [number] for £ [amount], which was due on [date]. Remind them of my [X]-day terms and ask for payment by [date]. Keep it under 120 words and UK English.

Final reminder before late-payment interest

Draft a final reminder for overdue business invoice [number]. Mention that under the Late Payment of Commercial Debts (Interest) Act I may claim statutory interest and fixed compensation if it is not paid by [date]. Professional tone, no threats.

Quote follow-up

I sent a quote for [job] to [customer] on [date] and have heard nothing. Write a short follow-up that answers the likely objection "[price/timing]" and offers a quick call.

Winning work

Explain my service simply

I am a [trade] in [town]. Rewrite this description of what I do so a customer with no technical knowledge understands it in 3 sentences: [paste description].

Google Business Profile post

Write a 100-word Google Business Profile update about [recent job / seasonal offer] for my [trade] business in [area]. Include one clear call to action. No hashtags, no exaggerated claims.

Reply to a genuine review

Draft a reply to this customer review of my business. Thank them, mention the specific job, and keep it under 60 words: [paste review]. If the review is negative, acknowledge it calmly and offer to talk offline.

Website "About" page

Write an About page for my [business] using these facts only: [years trading, qualifications, areas covered, what customers say]. Do not invent anything. 150 words, warm and plain.

Admin and records

Categorise expenses

Here is a list of my business expenses. Put each into one of HMRC's self-employment expense categories and flag anything that may be partly personal: [paste list without card numbers].

Month-end checklist

Create a 10-point month-end admin checklist for a sole trader who [invoices customers / sells online / employs 1 person]. Order it by what takes least time first.

Terms and conditions starter

List the topics my [service] terms and conditions should cover (payment, cancellations, liability, etc.) with one plain-English sentence for each. I will have them checked before using them.

Email templates

Write 5 short email templates for my [business]: booking confirmation, reschedule, running late, job complete, and asking for a review.

Thinking and planning

Price check

I charge £[rate] per [hour/job] as a [trade] in [area]. My costs are about £[costs] a month and I want to earn £[target] a year working [days] days a week. Show the calculation for the minimum rate I need.

Pros and cons

I am deciding whether to [hire help / buy a van / raise prices]. Ask me 5 questions first, then give a balanced list of pros, cons and risks based on my answers.

Plain-English explainer

Explain [Making Tax Digital / VAT Flat Rate Scheme / payments on account] to a sole trader in plain English in under 200 words, then list what I should check on gov.uk.

Tricky customer message

A customer sent this: [paste]. Help me write a calm reply that [keeps the relationship / sets a boundary / declines the extra work]. Offer two versions: short and detailed.